

ABSTRACT

A method and system manage access to services. A delegator delegates to a delegatee permission to access services and delegate further permissions to subsequent delegatees. The permission is represented using a digital signature. At least one delegation occurs over a personal area network while physical presence exists between the delegator and the delegatee.